VEPCO Announces Successful Test Of Nuclear Power Plant

Virginia Electric and Power Company today announced that Unit 1 at its North Anna Nuclear Power Station is one step closer to initial operation with the successful completion last weekend of a major pre-operational test.

William L. Proffitt, senior vice-president, said the company successfully completed the cold hydrostatic test of Unit 1. He said the test, required by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), provides increased assurance that the nuclear steam supply system can operate at its designed requirements. Mr. Proffitt explained that the test subjects the reactor pressure vessel, piping welds and other key components of the reactor steam supply system to more than one and a quarter times normal operating pressure.

"This is a major event leading to construction completion," Mr. Proffitt said. "Currently, Unit 1 is more than 92 per cent complete, and if construction continues to proceed smoothly and we receive necessary NCR approvals, we will load nuclear fuel in the reactor late this year and begin commercial operation in May of 1977."

In addition, he said the construction of North Anna Unit 2 is proceeding, with that unit about 70 per cent complete. Mr. Proffitt said that the fuel loading of Unit 2 will probably take place in late 1977 with commercial operation expected in May, 1978, prior to the expected peak load period.

He explained that the later in-service date for Unit 2 is due to construction delays and added NRC requirements.
